Thank you for joining us! We know that today marks an important and exciting transition in your student’s life and in your life as well. The following events are intended to offer parents and families an appreciation for the University’s challenging intellectual life, rich community, resources, and cherished traditions. We hope that you will learn more about Stanford, meet other families, and enjoy your day on campus.

PLANNING YOUR DAY

New Student Orientation (NSO) events for parents and families take place on the first day of NSO and are listed in this calendar and at orientation.stanford.edu. After moving your student into their residence, we invite you to learn about our campus community at various welcome events, open houses, and formal programs, including the Family Welcome Center, Opening Convocation, and the Dinner with the Provost for Parents & Families.

GETTING AROUND CAMPUS

The map in this booklet shows the locations of NSO events, which are all wheelchair accessible. For disability access information, please contact disability.access@stanford.edu or call (650) 725-0326. If you did not arrange for campus transportation assistance in advance, NSO volunteers will be available from 12:00 p.m. - 7:00 p.m. (subject to availability) to provide limited golf cart transportation for people who need help traveling between the residences, Opening Convocation, and the Dinner with the Provost. To request assistance, please call the NSO Office, (650) 723-7674, at least 30 minutes prior to an event.

PARKING & SHUTTLE INFORMATION

Temporary parking at the residences is available for up to 30 minutes only while you unload your car. Volunteers will be on hand to provide move-in assistance. After unloading, please move your vehicle to the Galvez Parking Lot, located on the corner of Campus Drive and Galvez Street, west of Stanford Stadium, where ample free parking is available today. The Galvez Lot is very close to the Arrillaga Center for Sports and Recreation, where many of you will end your day at the Dinner with the Provost. Stanford’s free Marguerite shuttles will take you from the Galvez Lot back to the residences. Look for the marked shuttle stop at the Galvez Lot, near the restrooms, after parking. Shuttles will run every 15 minutes from 8:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m. and every 30 minutes from 12:00 - 6:30 p.m.; stops are indicated on the map in this booklet. For real-time shuttle information, call the Marguerite dispatch line at (650) 724-4309.

NEW STUDENT ORIENTATION SURVEY

Your feedback is very important to us. Please let us know your thoughts about this day by filling out the NSO Parent & Family Survey, available starting September 25 at orientation.stanford.edu. You may also email your comments to approaching@stanford.edu.

We look forward to seeing you at Family Weekend: Friday and Saturday, February 23-24, 2018, where you will be able to attend lectures with faculty members, ask questions of President Marc Tessier-Lavigne and Provost Persis Drell, participate in discussions, and learn more about student life.

Staff and faculty involved with Stanford families and their students offer the following tips for new Stanford parents to support their students and help them to succeed in college.

1. Let go. Let them make their own decisions, solve their own problems, pick their own courses and, eventually, choose their own major. When they do choose a major, let the choice be based on intellectual passion, not perceptions of which major is safest or most pragmatic.

2. Listen and reassure. At some point in their first year, many students feel overwhelmed. They may call home, fearing their admission was a mistake. We hear this often. Listen, encourage, and reassure. Suggest they talk to their academic advisor, their residence dean, or their resident fellow. Remind them of the support resources at Stanford, such as tutoring, academic skills coaching, and counseling.

3. Have conversations about lifestyle choices, especially alcohol use, before they come to campus. Surveys show Stanford students drink less than the national average for college students. Nevertheless, problems like binge drinking are challenges at Stanford, too. Talk to your student in advance about the choices they are likely to confront and help them determine what they value in their own behavior and that of others.

4. Encourage them to get to know faculty members. The academic program at Stanford is designed to encourage close interaction between students and faculty. From small introductory seminars to faculty nights in the dining halls, Stanford offers opportunities for students to get to know faculty. Surveys show that students who develop close relationships with faculty get more out of their Stanford education than students who do not.

5. Encourage them to learn for the sake of learning. Stanford’s general education requirements are designed to encourage intellectual exploration. Many students are accustomed to collecting credentials needed for college admission. Suggest that they study a subject they have never studied before – they may discover new passions and interests.

6. Stay in touch, but perhaps not too much. Between their busy schedules and changes in their sleeping patterns, it may be hard to reach them. Help foster their growing independence by being in touch less frequently than you are used to. And don’t be surprised if your calls, e-mails, and text messages go unreturned.

7. Don’t focus on grades. When you do talk to your kids, try not to focus on grades. Ask which faculty members they have met, which classes they enjoy, what they are learning, and what they are doing for fun. Stanford students put plenty of pressure on themselves. What they need to know from you is that you believe in them.

8. Help them learn the difference between disappointment and failure. Many Stanford students are used to being the smartest person in their class. At some point, they will experience something they will choose to label as failure – perhaps their first “C” in a course – even if it is not. Assure them that their best effort is all you expect.

9. Send them a cake on their birthday. The Parents’ Club has been making Stanford a home away from home for more than 80 years. Birthday cakes are delivered right to dorm rooms by members of the club.

10. Call us if you are concerned or need reassurance. Colleges and universities are severely limited by federal law about what information about students they can share with parents. Nevertheless, if you are concerned about your student or need some reassurance, contact the Parent Help Line at (650) 725-0649 or email mykidis@stanford.edu.

Hail, Stanford, Hail!

Where the rolling foothills rise
Up towards mountains higher,
Where at eve the Coast Range lies
In the sunset fire,

Flushing deep and paling;
Here we raise our voices, hailing
Thee our Alma Mater.

From the foothills to the bay,
It shall ring,
As we sing,
It shall ring and float away;
Hail, Stanford, hail!
Hail, Stanford, hail!
