About C-BED

Community-Based Enterprise Development (C-BED) is a low cost, innovative training programme designed by the International Labour Organization (ILO) to support skills development and empowerment in local communities for improvements in livelihoods, productivity and working conditions.

As an approach to training, C-BED is unique in that the programme is built around peer-to-peer, activity based learning methods with no role for teachers, experts, or external consultants specialised in the skill area. Instead, C-BED participants work together through a series of activities and discussions guided only by simple step-by-step instructions in the training manual. New knowledge, skills and competencies are developed through the interactions between participants and sharing of existing local knowledge and experience. In this way the programme is a low cost, sustainable option for any organization or community.

The C-BED programme is structured around two core training packages designed to develop competencies for business start-up and operation through a focus on marketing, financial management, and action planning. These are the C-BED for Aspiring Entrepreneurs and C-BED for Small Business Operators. Additionally, a growing suite of tools to strengthen business competencies and enhance skills for specific sectors is in continual development. These packages can be implemented as either stand-alone trainings or integrated in modular format into existing programmes.

Restaurants

A restaurant is a business that prepares food and drink for customers in exchanges for funds. They form an important part of the tourism sector as they provide this service to visitors, often allowing visitors to sample local cuisine, undertake cooking classes or provide them with resting and eating spots while visiting various sites.
The Restaurant Package

The Training:
The restaurant package should be used to help aspiring and current restaurant owners and managers improve the management of their restaurants. It focuses on key management principles to build on from what participants already know from managing their restaurants and helps them to learn more. It can also build on from the learning in other C-BED tools namely SBO or AE. Participants bring experience to share and leave with a priority action plan (at least 3 actions to introduce improvements to their business). At the end of the training participants will have:

- Enhanced and advanced existing knowledge of restaurants management
- Strengthened critical competences to analyse aspects of restaurant management
- Affirmed the potential of enterprise development
- Identified steps and actions to improve their restaurant
- Decided on actions for the future
- Where applicable, started planning effective collaborations and associations

The Good Practice Guide:
This Good Practice Guide (GPG) is designed to help all restaurant owners and managers improve their restaurants. Those who take part in the training day will be introduced to and become familiar with the GPG on the day. However, those who have not attended the training can also use the GPG. The GPG contains a number of practical tools, tips and exercises to help restaurant managers and owners.

1.1. Licences and Permissions

At the start of any business, regardless of location, it is strongly advised that you acquire the necessary licences and permissions from the local authorities. These are often legal requirements of the national and sub-national governments. The approval for such legal documents is vital to ensure the smooth operation of your business.

The list provided below is a reference point to help motivate you to seek a more accurate and comprehensive list. Although it is not required to secure these documents for a business plan in all instances, the investors may require proof of your knowledge of the different legal documents required to establish the business. Once the business plan has been approved and finances secured, it is incumbent upon you to begin application. This should be undertaken simultaneously with establishing the business.
