Preface
The intent of this Module is to create a safe space where students can share their feelings through activities and the reading of powerful literature conducive to elicit personal responses from the children, provided students feel comfortable and safe doing so. Due to the sensitive nature and topic of this Module, it is strongly suggested that teachers communicate with parents the reason for making this a part of the Language Arts curriculum before starting the lessons in the Module and make clear that schools are safe zones and all classroom discussions and information are strictly confidential and protected.

Most teachers develop a system for establishing community (or a positive classroom climate) in order to get students to feel comfortable sharing and expressing their ideas and feelings with their peers, such as, through a “Magic Circle”. If the class is not used to sharing their feelings and ideas, it will be important to develop a level of trust and comfort so such things may happen. The first step is to establish norms by teaching and modeling behaviors that are conducive to a positive social climate. With older students, norms that promote a feeling of safety, confidentiality, and establish trust in a group can be developed by the group themselves. Younger students would need to be given the norms. In either case, what is important is that the students own these rules and understand that the norms will not only help them get along together by getting to know each other better but feel good about themselves and others.

There are four essential norms for establishing community:
1. We listen attentively to what others have to say.
2. We don’t make fun of or put down anyone.
3. We have a right to decide if, what, and when we’ll share.
4. We don’t tell anyone/gossip what was shared in our group.

An essential component to ensure the successful practice of these behaviors is teacher modeling. This can only happen if as teachers we are true and authentic to the message. What Jeanne Gibbs (1976) called being REAL and HEART-CONNECTED.

Setting is important. Sitting in a circle, where everyone can see and hear each other, is more conducive to establishing communication and feeling of community. Likewise, it would be important for the teacher to be part of the group and not place himself/herself in a position that establishes hierarchy or is perceived as one of power, especially with older students. Be willing to share your experiences and feelings whenever you ask students to share either orally or in writing.

This lesson is comprised of two activities intended to begin the process of establishing trust and an atmosphere conducive to sharing feelings and emotions within the classroom community.

Activity 1: Showing Feelings with Color

I. Objectives
   1. To encourage students to talk about their feelings and build trust among the class community.
   2. Expand students' vocabulary to express their feelings.

II. Standards
    CCSS ELA Speaking and Listening Strands 1 and 2
    ELD Standards I.A.1, 3 and 4; I.B.5

III. Materials and Resources
    1. Chart paper
    2. Markers
    3. Crayons, markers or tempera paint and brushes
    4. Art paper
    5. Literature Logs
    6. Teacher Resource: Color My Feelings Sample Table
    7. Teacher and Student Resource: Feeling Words Picture Cards (2 sets)

IV. Vocabulary
    Adjectives: Feeling words

V. Introduction
    Tell students that in this activity they will share words they know and use to express their feelings and will think of a color that represents that feeling
VI. Input

1. Sitting in a circle, brainstorm with students the different types of feelings people have. Contribute to the brainstorm, if needed, giving examples to help students understand the meaning of the word. On chart paper, create a 2-Column Table labeled Feeling – Color.
   - As students share feeling words, write them in the “Feelings” column. With K students, limit the number of words to five. Place the picture card that illustrates the feeling next to the word. See Color My Feelings Sample Table.
   - See Teacher Resource: Color My Feelings Sample Table for suggested feeling words. For older students, make sure to introduce the bolded words listed in the sample if students do not generate them as they will be important in the context of this module.

2. <Inside – Outside Circle>
   a. Have students form two concentric circles. The Inside circle faces the Outside Circle so each student is facing another student.
   b. Distribute Feeling Cards representing the words in the brainstorm, one to each student in the Inside Circle.
   c. Ask pairs to think of a color that matches the feeling, e.g., angry – red, and write it down on the card or a Post-it. Grade K: students share and teacher records the color on the second column of the table.
   d. Have Outside Circle move two places over. Repeat the process one more time or until you have at least 3 different colors to represent each feeling.

3. Grades 1-2: Debrief as a whole class. Teacher writes down the colors for each feeling in the “Color” column as students share.

VII. Reflective Discussion

1. Ask students to choose a color that represents a feeling and draw a picture based on the prompt/sentence frame.
   - I feel/felt ____ when ___

2. Have students share.

3. Ask questions such as, How did you feel while you were drawing? Why? What else makes you feel ___? I have felt the same when ___, ; What other feelings do you have? When?

VIII. Closure

Discuss the different feelings illustrated to point out similarities and differences. Point out that our feelings change depending on situations.
VIII. Follow-up Activities

K Literature Log: Divide a paper in two. Ask students to draw two pictures illustrating a time they remember when their feelings changed, e.g. scared to happy.

Grades 1-2 Literature Log: Write about a time when your feelings changed. For example, you were feeling bored and then you felt excited. Tell what happened.

NOTE: Be part of the community. Write your own entry in response to the prompt. If you would like to be able to support and observe students during the writing, have it ready ahead of time. Responses can be shared in a small group setting or one on one.

Activity 2: The “Me” You Cannot See

I. Objectives

1. To encourage students to talk about their feelings and build trust among the class community.
2. To build acceptance

II. Materials

1. Paper
2. Markers
3. Hand Mirror. If available, enough hand mirrors for every pair of students in the classroom
4. Literature Logs

III. Vocabulary

Descriptive words

IV. Introduction

Tell students that they will be participating in an activity that will help them understand that people are more than what we can see/their physical appearance.

V. Input

1. Show a hand mirror and model briefly describing your physiognomy.
2. Pass out the mirror and have students share.
3. Pair – Share: If available, distribute a hand mirror for each pair of students to look into. Pairs share what is the same or different between them.
VI. Reflective Discussion
   1. As a whole group, ask students in what ways they were similar or different.
   2. Point out that even if some had the same color hair or eyes they were still different in special ways.
   3. Tell students that even though we can see those differences, we cannot see what others think or feel unless they share it.
   4. Ask students to share how they felt sharing their “mirror”. Point out that we could not “see” those feelings.

VII. Closure
- Ask students to share why they think it is important to remember people’s thoughts and feelings.
- Guide students to become aware of the need to recognize, respect and accept, not only physical differences, but our different feelings and ideas.

VIII. Follow-up Activities
   K Literature Log: Draw a picture of a time when you were feeling scared or worried.
   Grades 1-2 Literature Log: Write about a time when no one knew how you were feeling. Tell what happened.

   NOTE: Be part of the community. Write your own entry in response to the prompt. If you would like to be able to support and observe students during the writing, have it ready ahead of time. Responses can be shared in a small group setting or one on one.

   Read Alouds:
   Whoever You Are by Mem Fox, First Voyager Books, Florida, 2006
   A picture book that celebrates the world’s diversity as it highlights that we all share in feeling joy, pain, love... regardless of where we live or who we might be.
   Words Are Not For Hurting by Elizabeth Verdick, Free Spirit Publishing, Minneapolis, 2004
   This book gently guides young children to understand that words affect other people and to use helpful rather than hurtful words.
Draw a table or T-Chart similar to the one below. K students brainstorm feeling words to generate a list of 5 words. Students in Grades 1-2 should generate a list of 10 words. If necessary, teachers may choose from the words in bold to help students complete their list. The completed chart should be displayed and used as a resource for students throughout the Module.

Preface

The use of literature to discuss and understand the human experience is a demonstrable vehicle to share opinions, feelings and emotions through the characters’ experiences and story events. As students study a particular text to arrive at the understanding of the author’s message and make connections between the characters and their own lives, not only can a safe place to share thoughts and feelings be created but students can arrive at a better understanding of themselves and others. This story was selected because of its strong connection to the realities that some of our students might be experiencing or the stress and fear they might be suffering as a result of worrying about their family or friends migratory status. With this in mind, the lesson can last for several days to provide students with the time and space to explore and share their feelings and emotions about immigration and help support the social and emotional educational needs of this student population.

Story Summary

This bilingual story is about a family that is suddenly separated when the mother is sent back to Mexico as a result of her undocumented status. Hoping to be reunited with her husband and small son once her papers are in order, the mom stays at a shelter in Tijuana. After several weeks, the little boy and his dad are finally able to cross the border to visit her.
I. Objective
1. Learn that there are people who help immigrants to be able to stay or return to the U.S. and places where immigrants can be safe while they wait to return home.
2. Use the story as a springboard for students to share their fears and thoughts about deportation and separation.
3. Understand the concept of borders, how they separate countries, and the human hardships they produce.

II. Standards
- ELA Reading Standards: Strands 1, 2, 3, 6 and 7
- ELA Speaking and Listening: Strands 1 and 2
- ELD Standards: I.A.1, I.B.5 & 6, I.C.11
- HSS Standards: K.1, 1.5, 2.2 & 2.5

III. Materials
2. Literature Logs
3. World map or map of North America
4. Handout (optional) – Family History Interview
5. Teacher Resource – Sample Flow Map with Text and Drawings

IV. Vocabulary
- Immigration (inmigración)
- border
- lawyer
- ciudadano (citizen)
- submit

V. Introduction
1. Ask students if they have a friend or family member who has moved away, e.g. new job, near family. Discuss how they felt when that happened.
2. Tell students that saying goodbye to friends and family who we may not see for a while and missing people we care about can be hard. What might you do when you are missing someone and feeling sad? Share a personal story if students are reluctant to share.
3. Ask students if they stay in touch or how they could stay in touch.

NOTE: If K-2 students have not experienced this type of situation, ask them if they have ever gotten lost and how they felt. The idea is for students to recognize that when we are separated from people we care about there is a fear that we will never see them again.

VI. Input
1. Read the title and show the picture. Ask students to describe what they see and how they think the characters are feeling. Ask what they see in the illustration that helps them.
2. Ask students to predict what they think the story might be about. Chart their ideas.
3. Tell students that the story takes place in two settings. Show Tijuana and San Diego on a map and explain that one is in the U.S. and the other is a city in Mexico by the border with the U.S. If students have background knowledge allow them to explain what they know.
4. Explain that Tijuana and Mexico are South of San Diego and the U.S.

VII. Reflective Discussion

< Section 1 (pp. 4-7) – Read Aloud. Show and discuss the illustrations.>

1. Page 4 - Ask students why the boy is so happy and to predict where his mom could be.
2. Ask students to identify who is telling the story (point of view)
3. Page 7 – Ask students to discuss what happened to the little boy’s mom and if their predictions were correct. Guide students to explain the reason the mom is not with them and how she might have felt. Reread the third paragraph if needed to support students’ understanding.
4. Re read the second paragraph – “Two weeks ago, Mamá didn’t come home from work. That night, when she called us, we all cried together.”
   a. Ask, Before Mamá called Papá and José to tell them what happened, how do you think they felt when she didn’t come home? Why?
   b. Why did they all cry together? (Refer to the Color My Feelings Table as a vocabulary resource for students)
   c. Do you know anyone or have you heard about someone who experienced the same thing as José’s mom? Are you worried/afraid that this could happen to someone in your family? Why or why not?

5. With students, start a flow map that indicates the sequence of events so students understand that on this page, José is recalling these events.
   Grs 1-2: Add or draw simple sketches to illustrate the events in each box so that students might copy.
   Grs 1-2: Ask students to copy in their Literature Logs.

Setting: José lives in San Diego with his family. One night, José’s mom didn’t come home from work. She was sent back to Mexico by the authorities because she didn’t have permission (legal papers) to be here.

Two weeks later, José and his dad are planning to visit her in Tijuana, Mexico.

< Section 2 (pp. 8-12) – Read Aloud. Show and discuss the illustrations.>

1. Page 8 - Ask, In what direction do José and his dad travel to visit Mamá?
2. Point to the Mexico sign on the illustration and ask students what it means. Ask them if they have ever been to Tijuana or crossed the border.
Discuss the idea of borders. Explain the significance of the booths. Ask students why they think the dad is not afraid of going to Mexico through the border crossing. Explain the difference between an immigrant and a citizen.

3. Ask students if they know other ways people cross the border and how do they think Jose’s mom came to the U.S. Encourage students to share personal experiences and/or oral family histories.

4. <Numbered Heads Together>
   - In small groups, assign a number 1-4.
   - Have students discuss reasons why people immigrate to the United States and chart their ideas.
   - Call on a given number and have students with that number stand up and share their group’s ideas.

   K-1 students: Brainstorm as a whole class and chart their ideas.

5. Page 10 – How do Jose and his mom feel? Where is she? Do you think she is safe? How do you know?

6. Continue the Flow map.

That day, Jose and his dad make the trip to Tijuana by crossing the border. Jose meets his mom at a shelter called Centro Madre Assunta.

7. Page 12 - What does José see at El Centro Madre Assunta? Who does he meet? Why do you think they are there?

8. Re-read paragraph 2 – “These are my friends Dona Maria and Josefa, Mama said. “They have been here almost a month. They make and sell beautiful crafts. Soon, they will have enough money to continue their trip north.”

9. What does Mama mean when she says, “Soon, they will have enough money to continue their trip north.”?

   K students: Explain that Mama’s friends have come to Tijuana trying to get to the U.S. but they don’t have enough money to do it. The Center gives them shelter and food so they will be safe until they can cross the border.

<Section 3 (pp. 14-18) – Read Aloud. Show and discuss the illustrations.>

1. Page 14 – Why is Mama’s closet empty? Why do you think they brought her pictures and Jose’s drawings? How do you think Mama is feeling?
   b. Do you think she is going to stay at El Centro Madre Assunta for a long time? Why or why not?

2. Page 16 - What does Mama need to be able to go back to the U.S.? Who is trying to help her go home to Jose?

   2nd grade students: If students bring up the subject of a “Green Card,” explain the concept of permanent residency making the analogy to a driver’s license. Guide students to understand that the border separation can result in hardship for many families living in those countries.
TEACHER’S BACKGROUND NOTE: A permanent resident is a person who has been granted permission to live and work in the United States. Proof of this status is a Permanent Resident or “Green” Card. A permanent resident is allowed to travel and re-enter the U.S.

3. Page 18 – Why do you think the Centro has a garden? Why do you think Mama wanted to help the children take care of it?
   b. What does Teresa mean when she tells José, “All of us want to be with our parents, but they are so far away.” Where do you think their parents are? Why are they separated from their parents? How do you think they feel?
   c. Do Mama and the others seem happy at El Centro Madre Assunta? How is El Centro Madre Assunta a place of refuge and safety for the women and children?

< Section 4 (pp. 20 – 31) – Read Aloud as you show the illustrations. >

1. Page 20 – Have the students play the seed game. Why did José want to play the game?
2. Page 22 – Why would José ask Mamá, “When these seeds grow, will you come home?” How long does it take for a seed to grow into a plant? What does Mamá mean when she says “no matter where they are, our loved ones are always with us because they are in our hearts”?
3. Pages 24-27 – What do José and his mom promise each other? What does José hope for?
4. Pages 28-31 – What do they plan to do until Mamá can come home? How does José’s dream show that he is hopeful for Mamá to be able to return to the U.S.?
5. Complete the flow chart.

| That night, José and his dad cross the border and return to San Diego but plan to visit Mamá in Mexico until she is able to return to the U.S. |

VIII. Closure

1. Saying goodbye to friends and family who we may not see for a while and missing people we care about can be hard. José takes care of his mom’s garden to help him feel close to her. What might you do to cope with, or manage, your feelings when you are missing someone and feeling sad? What might you say to someone who has a friend or family member far away?

2. José had his dad, where or with whom could he have stayed if both his parents had been taken to Mexico? What other family member might José have that loves him and could have taken care of him?
3. Jose’s family is trying to solve the problem. What are they doing? Who is helping them?

4. Tell students that the shelter in the story is a real place. Show pictures and describe its purpose. Help students arrive at the understanding that there are places and people who can help our family and friends if they are deported so they can return and be reunited with their families.

NOTE: El Centro Madre Assunta was established in 1994 by the Missionaries of St. Charles in Tijuana, Mexico. The Centro welcomes women and children who have been recently deported from the United States or who are trying to enter the United States. The refuge provides shelter, food, and medical and immigration assistance. http://assunta-tj.wix.com/assunta#

IX. Follow up/Extension Activities
The following activities may be carried out after reading the story or at the end of the section indicated below.

Section 3:
1. Grades 1-2: Have students research their family history. Where were you born? Where were your parents and grandparents born? Who were your first relatives to come to the United States? What country were they from? What year did they arrive?
   K: Invite a family member of a student in the class to visit the classroom and tell about their family history. Use the questions above as guide.
2. Grades K-2: Ask students to bring in one to three items (clothing, recipe, photo, postcard, etc.) that symbolize the countries from which their families came.

Section 4:
1. Just like José and the other children do in the story, have students decorate small pots or cans as plant holders to give to their parents or guardians. Provide students with paints, stickers, and other materials to design their planters and seeds to grow a plant in their pots. Have them keep track of how many days it takes for the plant to grow.
   Grades 1-2: Students can also take measurements at various intervals.

2. Grades 1-2: Write a letter to the Center or arrange for pen pals.
   K: Shared Writing - compose a letter to the Center and have students draw pictures. Create a class book to send to the Center.

3. Ask students to use the flow map to help them retell the story.

4. Use the Color My Feelings Table or the Feeling Word Cards from Lesson 1, Activity 1 to identify José’s feelings throughout the story or students’ feelings as they learn about José’s story.
5. Create a storyboard of the things Jose did during his visit to the Center. Write the sequence.

6. Additional Read Alouds
- Undocumented Immigrants by Sarah Howell, PowerKids Press, New York, 2015. This informational text uses brief and easy to understand explanations suitable for elementary grade students about reasons for undocumented immigration, rights, deportation, sanctuary city, etc. K teachers will find it easy to read or paraphrase and to pick and choose sections as the text is organized by topics. Their website related to the subject is regularly updated – www.powerkidslinks.com/mosa/undoc

- The Journey by Francesca Sanna, Flying Eye Books, London-New York, 2016. This is the story of a mother and her two children who escape their war torn country in search for a new life. Without documents, they pay their way crossing many borders. The book is an allegory for the difficult personal journeys of immigrants and refugees and the different paths they take towards a better future.

- Mama’s Nightingale by Edwidge Dandicat, Dial Books, New York, 2015. A Haitian mother is separated from her family when she is sent to an immigration detention center due to her undocumented status. After many unsuccessful appeals for help by the father, her young daughter writes a letter to the newspaper that causes a public outpouring of support. The mother is granted a hearing at court and is able to return home to her family. The story shows the potential for even the youngest of us to make a difference.
Flow Map of Key Events in North to South

1. Setting: Jose lives in San Diego with his family. One night, Jose's mom didn't come home from work. She was sent back to Mexico by the authorities because she didn't have permission (legal papers) to be here.

2. Two weeks later, Jose and his dad are planning to visit her in Tijuana, Mexico.
