Al Metcalfe Found

This is the player previously identified as Robert Metcalf of the 1875 New York Mutuals. Richard Malarsky found references that referred to the player as Al Metcalf. Richard found only one man in the Brooklyn city directory who had a similar name: Alfred T. Metcalf.

Richard traced through the Brooklyn death records until he located Metcalfe's death on September 2, 1914. Richard then found an obituary that confirmed he was the player. The obituary stated that Metcalfe played with the Mutuals in 1876, then played for Louisville. He actually played with the Mutuals in 1875 and, as far as we know, never played for Louisville. But it is highly unusual for a nondescript National Association player to have an obituary that actually mentions baseball. This find earns Richard the Find of the Month award.

Mormon Sources

Richard Topp sent along a list of databases that the Mormons have available on the web. Of use to us are:

2. Kentucky Death Index 1911-1996
5. Ohio Death Index 1958-1967
7. Obituaries Index (85 major papers, searchable by word or name)
8. U.S. Catholic Source Index
9. U.S. Cemetery Address Book

The address of the Mormon database is www.ancestry.com. You can subscribe from this screen. Most of the Mormon databases are not open to the public. You need a library card which costs $4.99 per month. However, the USGenWeb is open. They cover all genealogical societies by state and county. The county typically has their own indexes of births, deaths, etc. The address is www.usgenweb.org.

For example, in Ohio, they have death records available from 1913-1927 and from 1933-1937. If any of this might help you in tracking a ballplayer, you might want to check it out.

A Dilemma

What do we do with ballplayers who were born or died in rural areas? Fred Lenger sent me several Ohio born players who fit this criteria. If they were not born in town, the birth or death certificate lists a township. The problem with townships is that there may be several townships with the same name within the same state. Rich Topp suggests that the county be listed, but counties are quite large and doesn’t narrow down the place of birth or death very well. I’m more inclined to list the nearest town. For example, the birth certificate for Dean Chance states that he was born in Plain Township, Ohio, a few miles west of Wooster. Chance says that he was born in Wooster. Technically, that may not be correct but it is the closest town. What do the rest of you think?

Is Lyndon in London?

Several years ago Zerah Zequiel Hagerman was listed as being born in Linden, Kansas. Linden is listed as the place of birth on his death certificate. There is no Linden currently existing in Kansas but there is a Lyndon in Osborne County, so a couple of years ago we changed his place of birth to Lyndon.

However, Fred Lenger found a biographical sketch of Hagerman in a 1917 record book. It clearly states that Hagerman was born near Lyndon in Sumner County, Kansas. There is no Lyndon or Linden in Sumner County, but there is a London. Can anyone figure out his exact place of birth?

More Selko Notes

Jamie Selko reports that former Cub pitcher Charles "Red" Adams had a very unusual hobby: he captured and trained mountain lions. Also, John Savage may hold an unwanted record among ballplayers. He was wounded three different times during World War II. He came back from the war and went 3-15 for the 1946 Philadelphia Athletics.

No More Big Mac

Macmillan has decided to quit publishing the Baseball Encyclopedia. This book has probably been the most useful tool to our committee over the past 30 years and it is sad to see them go. Rumor has it that it may be picked up by another publishing company. We can only hope that Total Baseball will continue to thrive. It's now the only place where we can see in print the fruits of our efforts.

Off Season Careers

Cappy Gagnon has sent along a list of some early major leaguers' off season careers. I thought this might be interesting.

A Man for Another Sport

We all know that Ralph Terry joined the Seniors Golf Tour after his retirement from baseball and is now making money as a professional golfer. There is another player now making money in a different sport. Diego Segui is now a professional fisherman. I guess all that golf and fishing players do in their spare time eventually pays off. Will we ever see another player retire from baseball and become a doctor?

Let's Staple Down Mr. Staples

Joseph Staples played 7 games with Buffalo in 1885, batting a lusty .045. Richard Malatzky found a guy who quite likely is our ballplayer. Joseph E. Staple was born August, 1856 in New York, was married to the former Mary Forner, and died August 30, 1934 in Buffalo. The obituary doesn't mention baseball and we need to prove that this is our player. Does anyone know anything about this guy? He is our July/August Mystery of the Month.
