1875 Washington Nationals Player Identified

Our October Find of the Month award goes to Charles Weaver, for identifying the previously unknown player Witherow as Charles Samuel Witherow. Charles located this information in the New York Clipper. Witherow later played with Rochester, Minnesota in 1877. These National Association guys are next to impossible to find anything about. Now that we have a full name and a little information, perhaps we can track him down.

1996 Rookie List

It's October and that means the publication of the annual rookie list, which is attached. There were 194 rookies plus one non-playing manager. There are several things worthy of note about the rookies. The oldest rookie was Alan Cockrell, a former Tennessee quarterback, who debuted at 33, the oldest rookie since Minnie Mendoza in 1970. Cockrell, Webster Garrison, and Dale Polley were the only 30-year-old rookies. The youngest rookie was Andruw Jones, 19 years old and destined for stardom. Edgar Renteria, listed in most publications with a 1975 birth, was actually born in 1976, according to information supplied by his family.

We had several new countries represented. Bobby Chouinard became the first player born in the Philippines, Danny Graves the first born in South Vietnam, Robin Jennings from Malaysia, Eugene Kingsale from Aruba, and Brian Lesher from Belgium. We still need cities of birth for Lesher and Kingsale. Lesher went to the University of Delaware if any of you Delaware guys would like to check to see if the university has that information.

We also had several relatives of other major leaguers. Robert Estalella was the grandson of Bobby Estalella, Mike Farmer the brother of Howard Farmer, Aaron Holbert the brother of Ray Holbert, Jason Kendall the son of Fred Kendall, and Scott Spiezio the son of Ed Spiezio.

Finally, the moment you've all been waiting for. The moment where I pick my favorite name among all the 1996 rookies. We had some good candidates. Anthony Nomar Gareciaparra, whose father likes the name Ramon spelled backwards, Kimera Anechti Bartee, Dax Xenos Jones (Old Double-X), and Neifi Neftali Perez. But the winner is Hernando Petrocelli Harris, who goes by the nickname "Pep." Shades of Wenceslao O'Reilly Gonzales.

Total Baseball's Web Site

I recently examined Total Baseball's new website. It's very handy for looking up any ballplayer. You can search for a ballplayer and it will give you all his biographical information as well as his lifetime statistics. The only drawback seems to be that it apparently isn't regularly updated with our new biographical information.

If it were, it could be a good tool for our committee members to see quickly what ballplayers are missing biographical information. If interested, the address is:

A True Baltimore Oriole

Now here is some trivia with which you can amaze your friends. Joseph Muir has the unique distinction of being born in a city with a baseball team’s nickname and dying in the city where that team plays. If this sounds confusing, I’ll explain. Muir was born in Oriole, Maryland and died in Baltimore. It would have been perfect had he played for the Orioles. However, he had the misfortune to be on the hapless 1951-52 Pirates.

Birthday List

There are quite a few nonagenarians celebrating birthdays in November, including 3 on consecutive days. (Those of you who have November birthdays can garner some comfort from that fact.) Make sure you send a card.

November 2    Elon Hogsett    93
November 15   George Cox      92
November 16   Albert Wright   91
November 17   Rolland Stiles  90
November 24   Billy Rogell    92
November 28   Edwin Chapman   91
November 30   Clyde Sukeforth 95

Wanting a Full Nelson

Our October Mystery of the Month comes courtesy of Bob Tholkes, who has been tirelessly seeking Andy Nelson for many years.

Four score and seven years after Andy Nelson’s career in professional baseball apparently came to an end, the “large Scandinavian” who pitched in two games for the 1908 White Sox holds a couple of distinctions important to the biographical committee: he is the last member of the White Sox lacking biographical information, and with the exception of a remaining few of Connie Mack’s recruits, is the 20th century player for whom information is most lacking.

Andy’s recorded career began in 1906 with an unidentified independent team in the Dakotas. He returned in 1907 to pitch for the Leeds, North Dakota independent nine, and attracted the attention of a few scouts, most notably by striking out 21 batters in a nine-inning game against Lakota. He was signed by the White Sox, apparently on the recommendation of Sox pitcher Roy Patterson, on April 1, 1908, and sent to join the White Sox “seconds” at Sioux City, Iowa. Where Patterson saw or heard of Nelson is unknown. The seconds were on their way back to Chicago from a western exhibition tour, stopping for matches with minor league nines. Andy made his debut against Burlington, Iowa on April 7 and pitched in Decatur, Illinois on April 11. Burlington was his best outing: a complete game two-hitter with 11 strikeouts.

With a few others of the seconds, Nelson remained under contract to the White Sox after the beginning of the American League season, but was not placed on the active roster until mid-May and did not pitch until May 26 at Boston, when he mopped up in a White Sox loss, giving up one run in two innings. His second outing was a start against Washington on June 5, where he lasted seven innings, gave up one earned run, and had no decision. Removed again from the active roster, he was sold to Des Moines of the Western League in mid-June, where he was 7-8 for a last place team, threw a shutout, and batted .284.

Nelson returned to Des Moines at the start of the 1909 season, but did not pitch and was sold on May 19 to Fond du Lac, Wisconsin of the Wisconsin-Illinois League, where he spent the season. Notes in the local paper indicated that he may have been overworked there and hurt his arm. Certainly his effectiveness seemed to diminish toward the end of the schedule. He picked up the nickname “Battler” in Fond du Lac, apparently a take-off from the reigning middleweight boxing champion, Battling Nelson. He did not return to either Fond du Lac or Des Moines in 1910, and no further record of him as a player has been found.

Nelson is usually cited as a resident of Minnesota, most frequently from St. Paul but also from Minneapolis. One note identified him as being from Wichita, Kansas. The St. Paul Dispatch noted in April 1908 that he was a St. Paul boy, but it was quoting the Chicago newspapers, and gave no hints that Nelson was previously known in St. Paul as a ballplayer. He is invariably described as large and husky, and not mentioned as either unusually young or old for a player. The task of locating Andy Nelson’s biographical information is complicated by his surname (very common in Minnesota). He lived also at a time when Scandinavian immigration to Minnesota was heavy, and may very well have been born in Sweden.

The only biographical scrap discovered to date is a note in the Fond du Lac Commonwealth (September 1909) that he worked in the off season as a railroad detective, which may help in sorting the long list of possible Andy’s to be found in public records. He has over the past 12 years eluded such experienced and resourceful researchers as Bill Haber and Richard Topp. Andy Nelson, call home!
