INTRODUCTION

OBJECTIVE

The purpose of this study is two-fold. One is to develop a numerical indicator of the level of public confidence in the peace process using a set of standardized questions, which remain unchanged with each wave. The other is to use a set of questions related to recent social, economic and political developments in order to gauge public opinion of the peace process, which by definition will change from one wave to another.

Such information, collected over a period of time, will provide civil society and policy makers a useful barometer of the opinions of Sri Lankan polity, and ensure that the collective opinions of the public are given due importance and incorporated into the policy debate.

SCOPE & METHODOLOGY

The survey is carried out using a structured questionnaire administered through face-to-face interviews amongst a 1803 randomly selected sample. This survey was conducted among 22 administrative districts, however, in the districts of Jaffna, Vavuniya, Trincomalee, Batticoloa and Ampara, only the Government controlled areas were surveyed. In addition the areas affected by the Tsunami (26th December 2004) were excluded from the sample due to ethical and logistical concerns. Data is weighted to reflect the actual ethnographic composition of the districts in which the sample was surveyed.

This is the eighteenth wave of the PCI study, which was first conducted in May 2001. This publication presents only the top-line results of the March 2005 survey.

The results of these eighteen waves offer us data for a comparative study on changing public opinion regarding key issues, ranging from perceptions of war and peace to the current political developments. The results are subjected to a 3% margin of error.

FINDINGS AT A GLANCE OF THE POLL CONDUCTED FROM 16TH MARCH 2005 TO 2ND APRIL 2005

♦ Regarding the ‘no war, no peace’ situation that is currently prevailing in Sri Lanka, a majority (72.4%) states that the continuation of this situation is bad and that the Government and the LTTE should go for a permanent solution through negotiations. This opinion is seen across all the ethnic groups (Sinhala - 69.3%, Tamil - 81.6%, Muslim - 85.8%, and Up-Country Tamil - 87.1%). Only 12.6% believe continuation of this situation is better than pursuing a final solution. A marginal 5.6% believe continuation of this situation is bad and that the Government and the LTTE should go for a permanent solution through war. (Ref. Page 12)

♦ A majority (53.4%) believes that the Government is committed to find peace through talks, which is an increase since February 2004 (43.5%). A majority of Sinhala (57.7%) and Muslim (54.8%) communities believe that the Government is committed to find peace through talks. However, a majority of the Tamil (54.4%) community does not believe that the Government is committed to find peace through talks. (Ref. Page 13)

♦ When asked whether they think the Government is fully capable of finding peace through talks, a majority (56.6%) agrees with this statement. This opinion stems mainly from a majority of the Sinhala (57.2%), Tamil (55.6%), and Muslim (61.1%) communities. (Ref. Page 14)

♦ A majority (50.1%) disagrees with the statement that the LTTE is committed to find peace through talks. This is a significant increase since November 2003 (37.8%). From an ethnic perspective, a majority of the Sinhala (59.8%) community does not believe that the LTTE is committed to find peace through talks. However, a majority of the Tamil (82.5%), Muslim (50.4%) and Up-country Tamil (65.2%) communities believe that the LTTE is committed to find peace through talks. (Ref. Page 15)

♦ There seem to be mixed opinions with regard to the LTTE’s capability of finding peace through talks. While 37.1% agree that the LTTE is capable of finding peace through talks, 31.3% disagree. 31.6% don’t know or are unsure. The ethnic perspective shows that a majority of Tamil (79.8%), Muslim (52%) and Up-country Tamil (66.2%) communities believe that the LTTE is fully capable of finding peace through talks. The Sinhala community however, has a divided opinion. (Agree - 28.6%, Disagree - 35.9%, Don’t know/Not sure - 35.4%) (Ref. Page 16)

♦ A majority of 49% continues to believe that the Government goes in for talks due to its Commitment to Peace, a significant increase since February 2004 (38.2%). 31.9% of Sri Lankans also believe that the Government goes in for talks due to Economic Hardship. There is a significant increase since February 2004 in the belief that International Pressure is the reason that the Government goes in for talks (February 2004 - 9%, March 2005 - 26.4%). A majority of the Sinhala (49.7%) and Up-country Tamil (68.6%) communities believe that the Government goes in for talks due to its Commitment to Peace. However, a majority of the Tamil (64.9%) community believes it is International Pressure, while a majority of the Muslim (62.4%) community believes it is Economic Hardship. (Ref. Page 17)

♦ 35.8% believe that the LTTE goes in for talks due to the Realization that this War Cannot be Won, while 31.3% believe it is to Fool the People. 28.3% believe that International Pressure is the reason LTTE goes in for talks, which is a significant increase from 15.4% in February 2004. (Ref. Page 18)

♦ There seem to be mixed opinions with regard to how close the country is, at present, to approaching a final settlement to the ethnic conflict. While 33.6% believe that the situation remains the same, 32.5% believe that it is very close. From an ethnic perspective, a majority of the Muslim community (52.4%) believes that it is very close. The Sinhala (Very close - 30.1%, Remains the same - 34.4%), Tamil (Very close - 33.3%, Remains the same - 32.2%) and Up-country Tamil (Very close - 42.3%, Remains the same - 38%) communities however, have a divided opinion. (Ref. Page 19)

♦ With regard to participation in negotiations, a majority (30.5%) believes in the widest range of involvement in negotiations, while 19.5% believe that only the Government and the LTTE should be involved. From an ethnic perspective, the Sinhala community has a divided opinion (Support widest political participation – 28%, The Govt & the LTTE only - 21%). A majority of the Tamil (35.5%) community supports the Government, the LTTE and the International third party involvement, while a majority of Muslim (59.1%) and Up-country Tamil (51.4%) communities believe the Govt, Opposition, LTTE, Tamil, Muslim parties and an International third party should be involved in negotiations. It is significant that the Muslim community emphasises the importance of involving the Muslim political parties in the negotiations with or without an international third party. (Ref. Page 20)

♦ Of those who are aware about the Ceasefire Agreement (CFA) that was signed between the Government and the LTTE to end violence, 65% believe that Sri Lankans have benefited from the CFA. This opinion is seen across all the ethnic groups (Sinhala - 61.9%, Tamil - 73.8%, Muslim - 84.4% and Up-country Tamil -73.6%). However, 20.4% believe that they have not benefited. (Ref. Page 21)

♦ A majority (61.2%) doesn’t know or are unsure whether the CFA should be amended in order to strengthen and expand its scope, while 25.5% believe that the CFA needs to be amended. From an ethnic perspective there is a divided opinion in the Tamil (Agree - 44.2%, Don’t know/Not sure - 45.7%), Muslim (Agree - 38%, Don’t know/Not sure - 45.4%), and Up-country Tamil (Agree - 43.4%, Don’t know/Not sure - 45.3%) communities. (Ref. Page 22)

♦ Of those who are aware of the involvement of foreign monitors in monitoring the ceasefire, 36.4% believe such a monitoring mission is essential for the CFA to succeed. This opinion stems mainly from a majority of the Tamil (86.5%), Muslim (69.1%) and Up-country Tamil (75.6%) communities. A majority of Sinhala (34.9%) community believes that it will have a positive impact. (Ref. Page 23)
♦ 43.3% of Sri Lankans believe Sri Lanka Monitoring Mission (SLMM) is partial in its monitoring of the CFA. This opinion stems mainly from the Sinhala community (50.6%). Looking at the other ethnic communities, a majority of Tamil (74.4%), Muslim (49.5%), and Up-country Tamil (82.6%) communities believe the SLMM is impartial in its monitoring of the CFA. (Ref. Page 24)

♦ 40.5% believe that the SLMM is ineffective in its monitoring of the CFA. This opinion stems mainly from the Sinhala (46.6%) community. However, a majority of Tamil (69.2%), Muslim (49.1%), and Up-country Tamil (83%) communities believe that the SLMM is effective in monitoring the CFA. (Ref. Page 25)

♦ 65.3% believe having an International third party, as facilitator is essential or will have a positive impact in solving the ethnic conflict. From an ethnic perspective, a majority of Tamil (79.3%), Muslim (61.9%) and Up-country Tamil (70%) communities believe that it is essential, while a majority of Sinhala (40%) community believe that an International third party will have a positive impact in solving the ethnic conflict in Sri Lanka. (Ref. Page 26)

♦ 38.7% believe that India is the most suitable country that should play the role of facilitator in the peace process. 28% prefer Norway, while 25.8% favor USA as facilitator. From an ethnic perspective, a majority of Tamil (72.6%) and Muslim (52.5%) communities prefer Norway. 43.8% of Sinhala community prefers India in facilitating the peace process. The Up-country Tamil community has a divided opinion in this regard (India - 49%, Norway - 45.1%). (Ref. Page 27)

♦ With regard to the level of satisfaction on the Norwegian role as facilitator, 46.7% state that they are satisfied. 28.3% state that they are not satisfied at all. A noteworthy 25% don’t know or are unsure. From an ethnic perspective, a majority of the Tamil (86.6%) and Muslim (77.2%) communities are satisfied with the Norwegian role as facilitator. The Sinhala community has a divided opinion in this regard (Satisfied - 36.9%, Not satisfied at all - 34.7%, Don’t know/Not sure -28.5%). (Ref. Page 28)

♦ When asked if they approve or disapprove of Norway continuing to facilitate the peace process, Sri Lankans have mixed opinions in this regard. While 36.4% approve, another 35.3% disapprove. However, on the ethnic grounds a majority of the Tamil (90.3%), Muslim (71.1%) and Up-country Tamil (83.6%) communities approve of Norway continuing to facilitate the peace process. 43.2% of the Sinhala community disapproves of Norway’s role as facilitator. (Ref. Page 29)

♦ 63% of Sri Lankans believe that India’s involvement in the Sri Lankan Peace Process is essential or will have a positive impact. On the contrary, 13.9% believe that India’s involvement is not essential. Perspectives of the ethnic communities reveal that a majority of the Tamil (49.7%), Muslim (69.6%) and Up-country Tamil (65.3%) communities believe that India’s involvement is essential, while a majority of the Sinhala community (37.5%) believes that India’s involvement will have a positive impact on the peace process. (Ref. Page 30)
♦ 58.3% do not agree with the setting up of an Interim Authority in the North East. This opinion stems mainly from the Sinhala community (68%). A majority of Tamil (80.8%) and Up-country Tamil (50.7%) communities agree with the setting up of an Interim Authority in the North East. The Muslim (Yes - 40.2%, No - 44.9%) community has a divided opinion in this regard. (Ref. Page 31)

♦ Of those who agree with the setting up of an Interim Authority, 45.5% believe that an Interim Authority should be set up as part of a final settlement. This opinion stems from a majority of the Sinhala (59.9%) and Muslim (68.6%) communities support this argument. 37.7% believe that an Interim Authority should be set up before a final settlement. This opinion stems mainly from the Tamil (60.3%) and Up-country Tamil (60%) communities. (Ref. Page 32)

♦ 44.7% believe that the LTTE, other political parties and representatives of the Sinhala and Muslim communities should be included in the North East Administration. This opinion stems mainly from the Sinhala (54.3%) and Muslim (100%) communities. 21.6% of Sri Lankans believe that only the LTTE should be included in the North East Administration. This opinion stems from the Tamil (42.2%) and Up-country Tamil (51.5%) communities. (Ref. Page 33)

♦ Of those who are aware of the killings in the Eastern Province, 22.6% believe the perpetrators are the LTTE and Karuna faction. From an ethnic perspective, a majority of Tamil (48%), Muslim (40%) and Up-country Tamil (59.1%) communities don’t know or are not sure. The Sinhala community has a divided opinion in this regard (LTTE only - 8%, LTTE and Karuna faction - 27.3%, and Don’t know/Not sure - 28.1%). The Tamil (17.8%) community believes that Security Forces are the perpetrators. However, the Muslim community has a divided opinion in this regard (LTTE only - 16.7%, the LTTE and Karuna faction - 14.9%). (Ref. Page 34)

♦ A majority of 73.4% states that these recent killings will have a negative impact on the peace process. This opinion is seen across all the ethnic groups (Sinhala - 69.6%, Tamil - 83.8%, Muslim - 88.5%, and Up-country Tamil - 86.2%). Only 5.8% state that it will have a positive impact on the peace process. (Ref. Page 35)

♦ When asked if Tsunami has increased or decreased the likelihood of war, 54.2% state that it has decreased the likelihood of war, while 4.8% state that it has increased the likelihood of war. 23.8% state that the Tsunami has no impact on the likelihood of war. The opinion that the likelihood of war has decreased as a result of Tsunami is seen across all the ethnic groups (Sinhala - 50.4%, Tamil - 72.2%, and Muslim - 59.2% and Up-country Tamil - 73.2%). (Ref. Page 36)

♦ 35.7% believe that the likelihood of war has decreased because the Tsunami affected the people so badly. This stems mainly from a majority of the Tamil (86.5%), Muslim (61.6%) and Up-country Tamil (78.8%) communities. However the Sinhala community has a divided opinion in this regard. (Both the Govt & LTTE are affected badly by the Tsunami - 38.2%, Because the LTTE is heavily affected by the Tsunami disaster - 36.9%). (Ref. Page 37)
♦ Overall 65.6% approve of Norway's facilitation of an agreement between the Government and the LTTE on a joint mechanism to effectively distribute and utilize Tsunami relief. This opinion is seen across all the ethnic groups (Sinhala - 50.9%, Tamil - 93.3%, Muslim - 72.9%, and Up-country Tamil - 100%) communities.) Only 25.9% of Sri Lankans disapprove of this. *(Ref. Solutions
At the moment Sri Lanka is experiencing a ‘no war, no peace’ situation. Some people say that the continuation of this situation is better than pursuing a final solution. Others argue that a continuation of this situation is bad and, therefore the Government and the LTTE should go for a permanent solution, either through negotiations or war. Please tell me which of the arguments best describes your opinion.

Sampling Methodology

Given that the goal of the Peace Confidence Index (PCI) study is to measure the fluctuations in public confidence levels towards the peace process over time it is essential that the study be conducted repetitively with equal pauses during the study. Hence, from May 2001 to February 2004, PCI was conducted bi-monthly, however, from March 2005 onwards, SI decided to conduct the study quarterly to make the PCI more efficient.

The study is conducted using a structured questionnaire that is administered to a sample of approximately 1800 respondents during each phase of the study. This sample is adequate to capture the minimum ethnic diversity within the span of ten days of fieldwork. Although it is undeniable that an individual's opinion on the peace process is influenced by a number of factors, however the ethnic factor, which is the most important and influential, is the sole factor that has been accommodated in this model.

The total sample is distributed amongst 22 administrative districts (strata) of Sri Lanka, but in the Amparai, Batticaloa, Trincomalee, Vavuniya and Jaffna districts the LTTE controlled areas were not covered due logistical difficulties and methodological concerns. In addition, the areas affected by the December 26, 2004 Tsunami, were excluded from this wave's sample due to ethical and logistical concerns. The sample size is assigned to each stratum is approximately equal to the population proportions. However, some districts are over sampled due to the ethnic heterogeneity but the over sampling biases are eliminated by weighting the sample.

A sample is allocated to a particular ethnicity within a district only if the population proportion of that particular ethnicity exceeds 9%. A Divisional Secretariat (DS) is selected as the primary sampling unit using the Simple Random Sampling technique while the Grama Niladhari Divisions (GND) in a DS are selected randomly as the secondary sampling unit using the ‘Grama Niladhari Divisions of Sri Lanka 1996’ published by the Department of Census and Statistics as the sample frame.

To maintain the quality of the fieldwork and ensuring a maximum dispersion of the sample within a DS, enumerators are allowed to conduct a maximum of ten interviews a day in a GND. Within a given GND the enumerator is advised to select a starting point randomly and proceed with interviews using the random walk (right hand rule) technique in order to assure the random selection of households.

In the case of urban areas the interviewer is instructed to skip a house while selecting the households, thus resulting in the interview-taking place at every alternative household. As the final sampling unit, the respondent is chosen from the household using the ‘KISH’ grid thus ensuring that each member of the household has an equal chance of being selected to the PCI sample.

The PCI national level estimates are subject to a 3% error margin with a .95 confidence level. It is noteworthy to mention here that the PCI model does not support the regional level analysis at the same level of precision.

Social Indicator (SI) is an independent social research organisation, which conducts polls on socio-economic and political issues. Operating under the Board of Directors of the Centre for Policy Alternatives (CPA), SI was established in September 1999, and filled a longstanding vacuum for a permanent, professional and independent polling facility in Sri Lanka on social and political issues.

Polling is an instrument of empowerment, a means by which the silent majority of the public can express their opinions on issues affecting them. Our mission is to conduct surveys on key social issues, thereby providing a means through which public opinion can influence the public policy debate.
